New Courses Added
For Summer School

Senate Approves Additions In Curricula; Adopts New Graduate Rule

Four new courses, two in the College of Arts and Sciences and two in the College of Education, have been approved by the University Senate, according to an announcement by that body, which also gave approval to a proposal of the Graduate School which will enable graduate students in certain instances to offer work done in courses as a substitute for their normally required thesis.

The courses of the College of Arts and Sciences which were approved were "The Constitution Today," a one-credit course in the department of political science, and "Group Leadership," a one-credit course in the department of psychology. Both courses will be offered during the summer session.

"Education of Handicapped Children," which was requested by the state department of education in order that instructors carrying out the public welfare program may be more adequately prepared for their work, and "Evening School and Part-Time Courses in Agriculture," were the courses offered by the College of Education which were approved. The first named is a three-credit course, while the latter course is a two-credit course.

PROFESSOR ROBERTS SPEAKS

Prof. George Roberts, head of the department of agronomy, and Russell Hunt, tobacco specialist, were speakers at a meeting of Bourbon county farmers at the court house Saturday in Paris. Prof. Roberts spoke on "Soil Robbers," and Mr. Hunt addressed the audience on "Practices to Improve the Quality of Tobacco."

Camplon, stranded when their plane crashes on distant Eskimo Point, starts something. Dinsmore, of course, falls in love with Miss Camplon, and his attempts to woo her in, and apart from, the presence of Sir James form the principal action of the play. Further complications are provided by the appearance on the scene of Clara Wilson, supposedly engaged to Dinsmore but who really is one of the reasons for his voluntary exile to the far north. The result is a wild finish in the wireless cabin, where the entire action of the play takes place, when Dinsmore attempts to prevent the marriage of Sir James and Ethel, thus leaving the coast clear for himself, and at the same time to get rid of Clara by pairing her off with Sir James, with Rev. Arthur Chapham, local Eskimo Point missionary, trying his best to straighten things out.

"PETTICOAT FEVER" OPENS AT GUIGNOL

By DAVE SALVERS

Presenting a play that kept scenery and lighting effects up to the campus theatre's usual excellence, but fell a trifle below the casting standard set by the group in previous productions, the Guignol players opened for a week's run Mark Reed's three-act farce, "Petticoat Fever," last night in the theatre on Euclid avenue.

This casting fault in the production is rather evident to those accustomed to the theatre's former fineness. As a result, the vehicle sometimes gets beyond control of the cast, although it is obvious that the actors are desperately trying to keep it within the bounds.

"Petticoat Fever" concerns the adventures of one Dascombe Dinsmore, a wireless operator who lives alone, save his Eskimo servant, Kimbo, in a lonely station on the coast of Labrador. Dascombe has not seen a woman in months and, worst of all, a beautiful woman in two years. Naturally, the appearance of Sir James Fenton, a somewhat dim-witted English nobleman, and his betrothed, beautiful Ethel

Annual State High School
Basketball Tournament to Get Under Way ThursdayStephen Foster Vesper Program
Presented By Music Honoraries

By DAVE SALVERS

Members of Phi Beta, honorary musical and dramatic society for women, and Phi Mu Alpha, honorary men's musical fraternity, presented a delightful program of Stephen Collins Foster songs and provided something new and different in vesper concerts Sunday afternoon in Memorial hall.

Using as a background the lawn of an old Colonial mansion, decorated with flowers and climbing vines, the singers presented 12 of Foster's immortal songs blended into a continuous unit. A tribute to the arrangement of the songs and of the singers is the fact that no one voice or number was outstanding but each one rendered in the best manner possible and carrying out the theme perfectly. The colorful costumes and good lighting effects added to the charm of the program, and much credit is due to Jean Abel, Sara Gundiff, and Bob Griffith, who supervised it.

Members of the east included: Prologue leader, Jean Abel; Dixie Girl, Ruth Ecton; Jeanie, Mary Eleanor Clay; Southern Planter, Harlowe Dean Jr.; Susanne, Katharine Park; Nellie Bly, Mary Louise McKenna; Uncle Ned, Robert Dean; A Campdown Lady, Margaret Whaley; Alabama Boy, James Gibson; George, Edward Valleau; Nell's Lover, Billy Wilson; the Roamer, William Merton; Old Negro, Merrill Blevins; Boy, John McFarland; and Mammy, Clara Hughes. They were assisted by a chorus of Campdown ladies and pickaninies.

Also assisting the singers was a string quartet composed of Virginia Tharp, Virginia Robinson, Sue Wines, and Virginia Rowland; Virginia Rich, harpist, and Sue Durham, accompanist.

The University women's Glee club, under the direction of Mildred Lewis, will be presented in next Sunday's vesper program.

ENGINEERS HOLD
PLEDGING RITES

Dr. W. S. Webb Delivers Chief Address As Tau Beta Pi Inducts Six Juniors Into Honorary Fraternity

Six juniors in engineering were pledged to Tau Beta Pi, honorary engineering fraternity, at the annual spring exercises held Friday in Memorial hall. The guest speaker for the convocation was Dr. W. S. Webb, who spoke on "Research in Pre-History."

Pledges of Tau Beta Pi are Fillmore Slater, Louisville; Norwell Ivory Gebhart, Kansas City, Kansas; James Francis Gregory, Springfield; James Thurman Roberts, Somerset; Roland Wynns Pride, Clay; and Robert Eugene Fish, Lexington.

The convocation was conducted by Charles Reeves, Tau Beta Pi president. Following an organ prelude by Mrs. Lela W. Cullis, Mr. Reeves outlined the purpose and requirements for membership in Tau Beta Pi. He explained that prospective pledges must not only have scholastic ability, but must also have a pleasing personal appearance, personality, character, and integrity.

After the tapping service, Dr. Webb introduced the general subject of his hobby, archeology, by declaring that every man should have a hobby. "The only trouble is that the tail often wags the dog, and you have to be careful that your hobby doesn't happen that way," he warned.

The speaker then pointed out that, just as historians must refer to the news of today for the history of tomorrow so must archeologists refer to original sources to be able to interpret pre-history. Some of the most important "original sources" are the places where men lived, Dr. Webb stated.

The archeologist must depend upon the geologist, chemist, archeologist, botanist, and engineer for assistance in interpreting accumulated debris, the speaker added.

After describing several of his archeological experiences in Kentucky and Tennessee, Dr. Webb said in conclusion, "You can see from my talk that archeology, as a hobby, has some problems and offers some real 'kick,' and you can also see the danger of the tail wagging the dog."

Dean Jones' House
Destroyed By Fire

The home of Dean T. T. Jones, 1635 Nicholasville road, was destroyed by fire believed to have been caused by defective wiring Sunday morning, with an estimated damage of approximately $12,000, partially covered by insurance.

Dean Jones was alone in the house at the time of the fire, his wife and daughter visiting in Florida. He was awakened by a crackling sound which he first thought was caused by burglars attempting to enter the residence, but discovered it to be ablaze.

Practically all of the furniture on the first floor of the house was removed by Dean Jones, with the assistance of neighbors, but they were unable to rescue anything from the second floor.

Handicapped by lack of water facilities, members of the Fayette county fire department confined their efforts to preventing the spread of flames to nearby structures.

Drawings For Play Which Will Start 1 p. m. Thursday, To Be Held 5 p. m. Wednesday At Alumni Gym

BRAY, TEHAN, CHEST TO REFEREE GAMES

St. Xavier of Louisville Is Established As Favorite Of Tourney

By MARVIN N. GAY
Sixteen regional champions, the cream of Kentucky basketball teams, will battle in the nineteenth state high school basketball tournament which opens Thursday at 1 p. m. in the Alumni gym.
Tournament manager S. A. Boles announced that drawings would be held at 5 p. m. Wednesday in the Alumni gym. Dick Bray and Dan Tehan of Cincinnati and Bowser Chest of Nashville, will be the tournament officials.

Prices of admittance for students will be forty and fifty cents when accompanied by ticket books, seventy-five cents without the books. All box seats will sell for the regular price, one dollar.

Eight games are scheduled for Thursday, five in the afternoon and three at night. The first contests will begin at 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 7, 8, and 9 o'clock. In the quarter final round, two games will be played in the afternoon and two more at night. The semi-finalists will meet Saturday afternoon with the championship tilt scheduled for Saturday night.

St. Xavier of Louisville has been established as the pre-tourney favorite to win the basketball crown. The Falls City basketball team, with their first team playing only the first half, defeated Sonoma in the finals of the seventh regional, winning by 39 to 21. Other favored fives include Horse Cave, perennial threat from Western Kentucky; Midway, Central Kentucky's chief hope; Hazard, surprise winner over Whitesburg; and Inez, outstanding Eastern Kentucky threat.

Coach Earl Jones' Mayville five, winner of the hotly contested tenth regional, is the only Central Kentucky Conference team remaining in the championship. The Bulldogs defeated the powerful M. M. I. Cadets in a hard fought battle, 22 to 20.

Only two teams, St. Xavier and Hazard, have ever won previous state championships. Of the 16 teams that competed in last year's tourney, only four were fortunate enough to return to Lexington. These teams are: Inez, Midway, Newport, and College High, of Bowling Green. A new champion is certain to be crowned as Corbin's five, last year's title holders, were defeated by Knox Central, of Barbourville, 28 to 21, in the regional semi-finals.

WELCOME HIGH SCHOOL TEAMS

Displaying basketball ability which The Kernel hopes will later find its way into material for the University team, the regional basketball champions of Kentucky will play for the state championship this Thursday, Friday and Saturday on the Alumni gymnasium floor.

Every spring at this time the best basketball teams of this state gather on this campus for the tournament play. And with the teams come scores of high school students eager to cheer their team on. University students should remember that they are an example to these high school pupils. A cordial word from the University student is appreciated, and should be extended sincerely. They are the future students who will matriculate here.

To the visitors, The Kernel extends a sincere welcome. They come ambitious, eager, loyal in support of their team. The Kernel too shares their enthusiasm. Even though but one team can win the championship, all 16 teams have already proven their athletic superiority. Even though the adage be trite, "May the Best Team Win."

CHALLENGE TO THE PRESS

Twenty years ago, when President Eliot of Harvard presented an address in which he happened to mention the word syphilis and gonorrhea, a Boston newspaper, horrified, deleted all reference to the speech. In 1934 the National Broadcasting Company refused to allow medical officers to discuss the subject of venereal diseases over the radio, fearing criticism from listeners.

The fact that venereal diseases affect approximately 10 percent of the United States' population, that syphilis produces death or chronic invalidism in one-fourth of those affected, and that every year there occurs a total of 518,000 fresh adult infections has been known to medical men and social workers, but until recently the public has been neither informed nor offered aid in a forthright manner concerning this first class menace.

Throughout the country today, progressive newspapers are launching campaigns against venereal diseases, presenting information, advice, statistics, and aid to the average reader. Encouraged by Dr. Thomas Parran, head of the U. S. Public Health, surveys revealing the prevalence of venereal diseases, their causes, and cures, are being published in an effort to throw over the taboo concerning these diseases, a taboo which has been responsible for much of the havoc caused by these.

Carl Warren, of the editorial board of the

New York Daily News, which presented one of the most influential and valuable venereal disease campaigns, recently said, "I am convinced that the crusade against venereal diseases, now flaming everywhere, will be the No. 1 health campaign of the next decade and that the press will do its part—as it must do its part if these scourges are to be stamped out. Medical science has had the weapons to conquer syphilis at least for 25 years, but the disease is rampant. Who? Because the enemy has not been brought within the range of those weapons. The doctors cannot win this battle alone. You cannot kill a tiger when he hides in the bushes. Someone must drive him into the open. That is the job of the press, the radio, the screen."

Here is a challenge to newspapers which they must accept if they are to serve their true purpose. Medical science can wipe out venereal diseases if it is given the opportunity. It is up to the press to make that opportunity, to break down the taboo which is barring progress, to make the public take action against the menace which is so prevalent in the United States today.

In the Library—"Let's you and me get my accounting."

In a Chem lab—"Sure I told her I've been seeing her in my dreams. I just didn't mention that I'm being troubled with nightmares, lately!"

In Frazee hall—"He thought he was in love because he couldn't sleep and couldn't eat, and felt bad all the time. He was terribly disappointed when all he got was the flu!"

The Vice
Of the People

By GEORGE KERLER

In tune with the rumored collegiate trek to the Southern Pacific Archipelago was the SAE South Sea Stomp presented last Saturday night for your gregariousness and your dancing habits. This was a wealthy social riot we strode into happily and abominably but nevertheless enjoyed it from the first to the last measure. The same compliments about from the entire campus.

To good Tahitians like Lexy Sexy Potter, Van Deren Irvine and myself, the swingeroes seemed a bit sacrilegious to our archimorphic instincts, especially when Carl Moore's merry-makers and your feet shook the sands with such Polynesian ballads as "Let's Go Slumming" and "The Boston Tea Party."

Though it was Saturday night a remarkable number of students attend the lectures in the classroom down in the basement. Eminent there were the SAE's and other select toppers who kept the grass skirt rondo's jolity at a maximum.

The South Sea schema is typical of the SAE and American tendencies for the original. In this case it clicked perfectly. The Lime-stone lads truly deserve the campus's wink of approval.

South Sea Stomp—idea for a sewing composer.

This little Quigley went to market for J. Rice Walker at the SAE Jigger while Lucille Thornton looked on not altogether agreeably. Emily, now being stormed by Bob Mefford, has unique talent for unconsciously bombing solid and traditional couples, said the voice of experience. So let's baptize her, Happy Romance Demolisher No. 1.

Active who play the role of semi-Attila during Hell Week receive admirable vengeance from the frosh when the Seven Day Suffering ends. Examples: Delt John Chambers, goader extraordinary, was thrown into an automobile by the DTD pledges and was carried 52 miles down in the mountains, kicked out and left to thumb his way home. The Sigma Nu tyros were less cruel to their chief irritator. They threw The Goon, Wimmer Leonard, into the cold shower tuxedo and end all. Both Chambers and Leonard were in strange places.

Among the bibliophiles... In addition to being an academic problem, the Library has become a social puzzle. Should you want to ascend to the fourth floor via the elevator you'll have to walk. Why? Because "students" have used the vertical trolley line as a highway to carry on love's ups and downs. What's more they stop between floors, shut off the power, and turn to things more interesting. The library police have remedied this situation by killing the elevator service after 7 p. m. with more legal reasoning than the scholars employ.

Every time we get a juicy story it turns out to be a fat product of gossip evolution. Surely, by now, you have been astonished or heart broken by the news of Bardstown Red Simpson's lawful linkage with KD Tilly Denton. It is untrue. The fable follows:

After January graduation Red went to Florida. So did Tilly. They met at Hialeah Park and Tilly won $55 on a horse race. The dough and Red's eagerness resulted in marriage at Fort Lauderdale, Fla. We can imagine what happened. Tilly probably won a $2.80 show bet on the favorite and they went for a ride under the palm trees. Somebody saw them and by the time the story squirmed from the baseball training camps to the Blue Grass, Tilly had won $55 and a husband. It's all a lie. Now you coeda can cease weeping.

Stimulating Do Ann Young and "Doctor" F. F. Davis have reached the fork in the road and now they travel alone. A tiff concluded with Frank tearing his ring from Do Ann's finger and flinging it out the window. Miss Young's admirers were back in the fury for her favor at the SAE musical exercise.

Ye Kernel editor was quoted in the Literary Digest with the lyrics, "Colleagues are learning to drink like gentlemen." Convincing evidence of this fact was enacted at the jammed bar of the Canary Cottage prior to Saturday's festivities. However, at other local beer tests, Bacchanalia was in full swing. But the packed Cottage trough indicates that some persons are beginning to drink temperately and dignifiedly, a custom that America seriously needs for we hear that the Prohibitionists are rallying.

Tommy, what would Mary Genevieve say?

A thought by Joe Quinn out of reflection. Joe is not cynical about this for he is delighted that his boys won the tournament. Recalling how we were not whipped in the regular conference race last year but dumped in the playoffs and yet we howled "We're the champs," Joe suggests that we can sympathize with Georgia Tech for they are in the same plight now as we were last year.

The man is right.

Banner Banalities
 Bob Cole and Don Eckler plus other SAE hecklers attempted to invade the Alphagam fortress after the dance but the defenders successfully discouraged them... Collegians, like all Main Streeters, despise a change of custom. That's why Harry Kremer's top hat is in constant jeopardy. He hadn't passed the first table in Brumfield's before a $3 bet was made that Kremer's stovepipe would meet destruction before he left. Mildred Martin sensed the hat hatred and became its warden, so Harry wore his lid to the dance... Lucy Anderson swished into the dance with Pep Mansfield and galloped out on the arm of another. Which proves, Pep, never be naughty when there are good little boys around... Rice Walker swayed the fifth no-break (Continued on Page Three)

It's a wise economy to keep your present clothes looking better and lasting longer. That "just out of the bandbox" air doesn't necessarily mean a lot of new clothes. It need only mean keeping your present clothes in tiptop condition. And that's what a superior dry cleaning process like Lexington Laundry really does — what "price only" cleaning can never do.

Ruby Keeler says: "Luckies are a light smoke that treat a tender throat right"

"In a way, it's easier to keep in condition as a dancer than as a singer. Exercise can keep the muscles in shape, but there are a lot of things that can go wrong with the voice and throat. It stands to reason, then, that any actress wants a cigarette that is gentle and strikes the right note with her throat. I started smoking Luckies 4 years ago. They're a light smoke that treat a tender throat right."

"READY, WILLING AND ABLE"

An independent survey was made recently among professional men and women—lawyers, doctors, lecturers, scientists, etc. Of those who said they smoke cigarettes, more than 87% stated they personally prefer a light smoke.

Miss Keeler verifies the wisdom of this preference, and so do other leading artists of the radio, stage, screen and opera. Their voices are their fortunes. That's why so many of them smoke Luckies. You, too, can have the throat protection of Luckies—a light smoke, free of certain harsh irritants removed by the exclusive process "It's Toasted". Luckies are gentle on the throat.

By TOM WATKINS

THE WORK-INJURED FLOOR of the Alumni gym will take another beating this week-end when the Kentucky State High School Tournament convenes for its annual meeting. Coaches will age visibly, directors will sprout more gray hair, and the arena will resound once more with the enthusiastic cheers of high school students. The dreams of young hopefuls of the hardwood will become realities or illusions. Sophisticated collegians will join their younger brethren in cheering on the cohorts of their old alma maters. Such is the panorama of this ancient and colorful pageant, which lends a touch of the spectacular to an otherwise drab close of the season.

Sixteen teams will enter the arena with high hopes for the championship this year, four of whom contended here last year. College High of Bowling Green, Newport, Inez, and Midway survived the pounding of both the regional and the district tournaments to enter the state classic. Corbin High's Redhounds, last year's champions, will be conspicuous by their absence, having been eliminated in the regional. The remaining twelve berths will be occupied by quintets that have been here before, some of them champions of years gone by. Such teams as Hazard, Horse Cave, St. Xavier, Maysville, and others well known to Central Kentucky sports fans will try to oust the four contenders of last year, and it is this column's opinion that only one of the four will survive to enter the semi-finals.

A hangover from the past collegiate basketball season appeared with the publication of national rankings by Dr. E. E. Littenhaus, whose system is used in placing the quintets in ranking. The first place was taken by the Fighting Irish from Notre Dame, one of Kentucky's opponents of the past season. Stanford's Indians took a close second, while Minnesota, ruler of the gridiron, nosed out Purdue for third position. Kentucky's Wildcats nosed out Fordham for eighth place, and the official publication stated that this position was awarded them for their superb play in winning the Southeastern Conference tourney. This seems to place Kentucky in a ruling place in southern basketball, as the S. I. A. A. crown was annexed by Western State Teachers' College. I wonder if Indiana is indeed the "basketball state," or if Kentucky is forcing its way into the national vision in this field.

Represented by Capt. Ben Willis and Dave Rogan, the Wildcat track team annexed one lone point in the Central Intercollegiate conference indoor track meet, held last week in South Bend. This one point was scored by Rogan, who placed fifth in the 880-yard run. He was also entered in the mile run, while Willis was a contender in the 60-yard dash and the 65-yard low hurdles. The meet title was won by Notre Dame, whose Gregg Rice broke the conference mile record. Kentucky's thimble are entering stiff competition when they enter a meet like this, and they showed up well.

Due to inclement weather, the majority of the sessions of spring football practice were held inside the gymnasium last week by the varsity. Basketball players have given up the hardwood and reported for football, among who are captain-elect Joe Hagan, Bob Davis, and Walter Hodge, who is at present hampered by injuries.

Collegiate cheering sections might take a lesson from the enthusiastic roars of high school sections when the State tournament convenes this week. These tireless rooters set up a roar of approbation when their favorites enter the arena, and are never silent until those favorites leave the floor in victory or defeat. The listless cheers of collegiate sections show a comparison that is highly detrimental to the adherents of college teams.
